

HABITS OF A MISANTHROPE.

SAN FRANCISCO CAPITALIST BARRICADES HIMSELF.

Methods by Which He Prospered—Was Fond of Noisy Dogs That Howled at Night and Battered Sleep.

Henri Windel, the capitalist, who was thrown out of a buggy and killed last Wednesday, was considered eccentric by his acquaintances. He had a gloomy temperament, says the San Francisco Examiner.

About eight years ago he chose a new residence that had a tall fence in front, and in which he was well guarded from general observation. A bell at the gate was the only means callers had of summoning a person in the house. When Windel, who leased this large dwelling, suited it, he placed a bell in the house, and the approach to them being separated from the entrance to the other apartments. He had a bell put in these rooms also, and the handle by which it was rung was so placed by the fence that only those whose attention he called to it knew about this second bell and were aware that it was for him alone.

A few years ago a couple of men climbed the fence at night, and the barking of a dog awakened Windel, who fired a shot at the prowlers. He then put two lengths of barbed wire on top of the fence.

The house has been rented for over two years by Howard Morrison. He has a Spanish that barks whenever a footfall is heard, and on this account Windel praised the animal highly. Windel was always morose and apparently in dread.

Morrison said that no man ever called on him through friendship, and only a few friends were paid him yearly by men of business.

Windel was not inclined to let other men around him remain any happier than himself. He so worried the contractor who was doing the bricklaying when the house was being built, that the man became sick and died at his home in Hayes Valley before the work was finished.

When Windel came to California forty-five years ago he started as an upholsterer.

HENRI WINDEL.

CASTLE OF AN ECCENTRIC CAPITALIST.

Henri Windel, a San Francisco misanthrope, had a residence on a little cul-de-sac called Burritt place, which was guarded by a tall fence, and in the fence, and from the elevated windows he could view all who called to see him. From a window a trolley arrangement carried mail boxes to and from the fence.

Then he made loans on furniture and jewelry. He had the reputation of being very sharp in his dealings, always declaring pledged goods forfeited without delay. On furniture obtained in this way, he profited largely. It is said periodically he had sales of trunks which were left with him on storage. Bidders at these auctions were told that no keys had been left with the trunks. They took chances. Occasionally one was opened for the inspection of the crowd by some person to whom it was knocked down. The contents were valuable. Then other trunks were in demand. When taken away and opened they were found to be full of newspapers and useless stuff. Articles which had been in the trunks before the sale, it is asserted, were afterwards disposed of at Windel's store.

Windel's wealth was in cash, stocks and bonds, deposited with the Union Trust Company, which corporations took charge of the effects and had the rooms of the deceased officially sealed. His adopted daughter, who was thrown out of the house by Windel, may expect a part of it.

About twenty years ago Windel and his wife were divorced in this city. She will probably ask for a share of the estate.

Two years and a half ago Windel went to Germany. It was hinted that a wealthy man, involved in litigation, furnished him means for the trip, and that he might not testify. He returned this year.

Windel said that he had married in Berlin and left a wife and two children. Perhaps another claim on the estate may come from Germany.

THE OLDEST TWIN SISTERS.

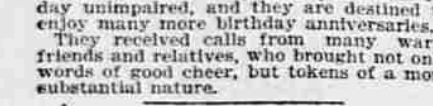

Ninety-second Birthday of Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Hall Celebrated at Barnstable, Mass.

An occasion of unusual interest, though of an entirely modest character, was the celebration, this week, of the ninety-second birthday of the oldest twin sisters in the United States, Mrs. Hitt Smith and Mrs. Deborah Hall, of Barnstable.

They are in the best of health, and look as hale and hearty as many persons twenty years younger. A beautiful feast was in the lives of these estimable ladies is the fact that every family remains to be happy and contented. They are not only more than ninety years old, but they are also in the prime of life. They received calls from many warm friends and relatives, who brought not only words of good cheer, but tokens of a more substantial nature.

Trouble in His Feet.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

A Georgia farmer has a son who writes verse, but is too modest to submit it for publication. One day, when the farmer was going to town, he took a bundle of poems along with him and handed them to an editor.

"This is my poetry," said the editor, "it is all right, but there's something wrong with his feet."

"Well," said the farmer, "I won't deny it, he has got corns."

IN COMPACT WITH THE DEVIL.

MURDERER KELLEY WAS TO SERVE SATAN FOURTEEN YEARS.

Colorado's Mauderer Wants Pardon—The Mystery of a California Female Burglar—A Notorious Criminal Captured.

Joseph Kelley, who murdered Cashier Joseph A. Stickey, of the Great Falls National bank, in Somersworth, April 1st, last, made a remarkable statement in the Denver Post.

In substance, Kelley says that his mind was not at all clear when he committed the crime. He was then a young man, and he was in a state of mind that he could not control. He was then a young man, and he was in a state of mind that he could not control.

HE MAKES EASY MONEY.

ERNEST TERAH HOOLEY CLEARED $100,000 IN THREE DAYS.

Now a Lion in London—Not a Question of Luck, Is Money Getting, but of Hard Work—Hooley Is Worth Millions.

Not since the days of the banana kings and "Coca-Cola" has the world seen the making of such wonderful fortunes as these which have been gained on the London stock exchange in the last fourteen months. It is a fact that much of this everyday stripe of money-making and money-losing that nowadays it requires absolute genius to attract the attention of the world, and this has really been accomplished by a man named Ernest Terah Hooley.

Hooley gave up his law business in provincial antiquated Nottingham and began to dabble in the local stock market. He was a poor man, and in fact, he was never known to be rich.
